Welcome to beautiful southern Indiana in the autumn. Bloomington is 60 miles south of Indianapolis located in the midst of rolling hillsides, karst limestone, and beautiful hardwood forests. Nearby Nashville Indiana in the middle of Brown County is an artists colony, a tourist destination, and the site of some of the most magnificent fall foliage displays in the Midwest. Bloomington, itself, is the home of the world renowned campus of Indiana University founded in 1820 and noted as one of the best designed and manicured campuses in the U.S. There is lots to do and see on your way in, while here, and on your way out. Several nearby orchards are in the midst of fall cider making. The well known Oliver Winery is just 5 miles north of town on SR 37 with daily tastings.

Although we will be spared the traffic hassle of a home football weekend with the Hoosiers away, Monroe County this weekend is the host of the “Hilly Hundred” bicycle event with 6,000 - 8,000 riders annually (lodging is at a premium and goes quickly). The town itself is designed to be pedestrian friendly and revels in its small town atmosphere, lovely courthouse square, numerous shops & boutiques. The area is steeped in history having been settled by numerous Revolutionary War Veterans.

A shuttle van has been arranged to take passengers from the Hampton Inn on Friday night to the reception at Gasthaus Legler, to ferry the ladies to and from their programs and activities on Saturday from Terry’s, and again to provide shuttle service Saturday night for the banquet from the Hampton Inn to Terry’s & return.

To help with planning, the Friday evening reception is casual dress, the Saturday business session is coat & tie, and the Saturday night banquet is black tie or colonial dress.
